ANNUAL CLEARANCE SALE

BEGINNING

Saturday, June 20th, 1914

AND LASTING FIFTEEN DAYS

As announced in these columns last week, we will throw our entire stock of high grade merchandise on the market at slaughter prices FOR CASH ONLY.

Those who have patronized our former Clearance Sales need no introduction to them, as we have always produced high grade merchandise at ridiculous low prices. This year we are in position to sink the knife really deeper into real values, as we are overloaded in some departments. This fact can be proven by a visit to our store during this sale. Our customers and friends are invited to come in and take advantage of this opportunity to save money. Some of the items you will find below, but there are many others on display at our store that are even more attractive. We are overstocked in merchandise and need the money, is the only reason why we are able to offer our goods at these prices, and we cannot sell them at these prices EXCEPT FOR THE CASH. We will take care of our charge accounts during this sale, however, at lowest charge prices.

Long Tenure in Office.

Some little attempt has been made to create sentiment against Congressman Edwards for re-election on the ground that he has held the office for a long time and should be retired. His opponent at one time used this point to the extent that he stated that men in office for a long time often become neglectful of their duties and should be retired. He does not declare that Mr. Edwards has at any time neglected any specific duty, but the point is hinted at that to do so would be a natural result of his continuance in office.

As a matter of fact the point against long tenure of office is a very weak one. It is the last resort of the man or faction who cannot find anything tangible to charge against the person whose office they covet for themselves or their friends. It has been used in county politics with more or less telling effect in times past, and it may be admitted that there have been times when changes on that account were an improvement. At the same time this state of affairs is the exception rather than the rule.

It is always the exception in those offices where fine points of statecraft exist and where men are given points of vantage on committees, etc., in recognition of their service. It may well be that Mr. Edwards or any other man could fail to use the advantages that accrue to his district through him, and if he did he ought to be retired for some other man who would better represent his people. But, as we have said, no charge is made against him of neglect or failure to properly represent his people.

No one will attempt to deny that Mr. Edwards has attained to committee positions in the house of representatives which have placed him in power to do good that a new man could not have done, no matter how earnestly he may have desired to. The people of Statesboro have seen undisputed evidence of his ability to do things for them which others have said could not be done. He has not lagged because it was said that his undertaking was impossible, nor because there were critics who have gloried in his defeat. He has not done everything he has tried, it is true, but he has done some of the things he has tried while others said it was not worth the while to try. We honestly believe he has been able to do these things because of his influence acquired through positions held through merit and continuance in office.

No reasonable business man would turn off from his employ an efficient workman on the ground that he had held the job long enough. There would have to be some other charge to justify a merchant or farmer in letting go a faithful employee. The old servant must have proven recreant or there would need to be some other ground. In this connection it will be interesting to note the statement of Hon. Champ Clark, speaker of the house, in a recent speech in the house:

"Iowa is an imperial commonwealth, and from her entrance into the union has been as ably represented in the house, the senate, the cabinet and the diplomatic and consular service as any of her sister states." She is one of the two states on the sunset side of the Mississippi to furnish a speaker of this house. She seems to have discovered at an early date the value of retaining able and faithful men in Congress. Consequently she has always been prominent in Washington. At one time she counted among her citizens the speaker of the house, two cabinet ministers and the senator longest in service. In fact, William B. Allison not only lived to be the mentor of the senate, but he, of all men had the longest senatorial service in our history, and he lacked only a few months of having the longest total service in house and senate, being exceeded in that regard only by Senator Justin Smith Morrill, of Vermont.

What Mr. Clark says is as true in regard to the First district of Georgia as it is in regard to the state of Iowa. If our congressman had outlived his days of usefulness—had ceased to represent the people faithfully and industriously—then the long term of office would apply in his case. But he is still faithful and energetic; nothing good for his district is too great for him to go for; nothing of value to his constituents is too small to command his attention. He ought to be kept there as long as he does well. And he will be kept there.

Few of the voters in Georgia are well enough posted to name off-hand all the candidates for governor. Fewer still are decided for whom they will vote.

Hugh Dorsey will listen to bad advice if he decides to run against Hoke Smith for the senate. If he just must run, he ought to get in the slower class where running is better.

It is reported that Tom Watson will back Nat Harris for governor, and is trying to get Hugh Dorsey to run against Hoke Smith for the senate. Well, now Tom is half right on the Harris proposition; but he's dead wrong on the Dorsey program.

Tom Felder's platform on the liquor question ought to be satisfactory to every reasonable prohibitionist. He says that, if elected to the senate, he will oppose the shipment of whiskey from a dry state into a dry state. More could not be asked in reason by the prohibitionists.

It may be considered a little early to prognosticate on the senatorial race, but it begins to look like "Little Tom" Hardwick is likely to be the winner. The fight between the papers and the people because of his failure to spend his cash with them for space, will possibly give him some notoriety, and it ought to help him some.

NEWSPAPERS GROW SARCASTIC IN THE CONGRESSIONAL RACE

One of the finest bits of sarcasm that has appeared in connection with the congressional race was published lately in the Milledgeville Journal. It was given by way of editorial comment upon a candidate for the senate, who had been defeated. A representative must be very thick-skinned not to feel the keen thrust made in this article. Sarcasm and irony are great weapons, and the editor of the Journal knows how to use them in a telling way.

The article was as follows:

DE LUXE.

There never has been a finer contribution to art and literature than the de luxe edition of "Edwards' Record," which is now being circulated in the First congressional district. This record is fully illustrated, containing five portraits of the distinguished statesman. The one which is to be seen by the side of the proposed monument at Milledgeville is particularly effective. The monument is forty-eight feet high and eighteen feet in the base, and yet, according to the picture, the statesman is bigger in length, breadth and thickness than the monument. There is nothing to be said to the disparagement of the monument, for "he is one of the noblest men of the nation ever produced." A statement of the kind in passing the campaign platform act, to prevent frauds and wrongs in elections—helping toward clean politics and to the "rule of the people" instead of to the "rule of politicians," is greater than any monument, be it of marble, granite or bronze. The "achievements" of the statesman are fully set out with a minuteness of detail that would do credit to an expert in microscopic work, and they extend from the distribution of powder seed to opposition to the railroad construction. The recital of "achievements" is so simple and unaffected that in connection with the portrait of the statesman it is a masterpiece of art.

The Man on the Job at Washington. No doubt on earth that Mr. Edwards is correct when he says: "I shall never turn a deaf ear to the voice of the people." Few men have been more self-reliant than Mr. Edwards, who even gave up his law practice to devote his whole time and energy to the duties of the office with which he has been honored.

"Achievements" and sacrifice denied that Tattlin's "nobility" son should be returned to the halls that would be alien in his absence. It is to an office that would be helpless without him.
